

How does Aurora help?

Encourages communication and understanding between doctors and patients

"Aurora helps to have my symptoms tracked in one place, on a medically approved device. This makes my pain more objective and easier to explain."

"Since using Aurora, my patients can easier explain their symptoms and remember them as they were in the moment. It offers us a common language."

Stimulates collaboration

"Aurora has showed me that I'm a vital link in the care journey for my treatment to be fitting for me. Just expecting the doctor to give us a pill and heal us doesn't work."

"Aurora allows me to work together with my patients collaboratively. Both the woman and I learn more about her health and endometriosis."

Addresses time limitation barriers

"With the app I can quickly remember when I had what symptoms and how they felt. It's especially helpful when I'm too tired or in too much pain to even think or talk."

"The weekly, monthly and yearly overviews help me get a quick understanding of her health and to identify if the pain is cyclical which is often an indication of endometriosis."

Promotes continuity of guidance and care

"Aurora provides me with medically approved information and addresses such as support groups, articles and informational videos."

"Instead of sending a patient home to wait and see how she feels, I can advise her to use Aurora which helps us figure out what's going on together. I think it shows that we care and acknowledge her and her pain."

Encourages the woman's self-management, understanding of her body and confidence

"It motivates me to take charge and learn about my health. It's empowering because I feel that I'm in control and that it's ok to seek a second opinion if something seems off."

"I've found that women are more knowledgeable of the condition, the treatment they deserve and more confident to speak up."

Empowers and increases knowledge and awareness for both doctors and women

"I learn more about my pains and symptoms, what affects them and when they occur. This allows me to recognize patterns and know what to look out for."

"Aurora provides me with information on endometriosis, what to look out for as well as sending me hints when the smart feature detects something out of the ordinary."
